

Reference for Richard Rybák

To whom it may concern,

I am pleased to recommend Richard Rybák, who has been a student in my Business English class for three years at Lyceum. During this time, I have witnessed notable academic progress, personal development and a growing awareness of his own capabilities.

When Richard first joined my class, his English performance particularly in vocabulary, grammar and comprehension was below what he was capable of. However, once he recognized these gaps, he approached improvement with genuine motivation. Throughout his first year, he committed more time to studying, asked purposeful questions and made steady, measurable progress. His fluency, accuracy and confidence in handling complex texts improved significantly.

A major source of his progress is the discipline he brings from his basketball background. Richard shows strong determination and work ethic in sports, and when he applies this same focus to academics, his results are excellent. His performance is closely tied to motivation. When he sees purpose and challenge in a task, he consistently exceeds expectations. When he does not see a clear purpose, he may settle for doing only the basic requirements. This reflects not a lack of ability, but a need for meaningful goals and an environment that pushes him.

In terms of character, Richard is respectful, kind and interacts with peers and teachers with maturity. He contributes positively to the Lyceum community and responds well to structure, encouragement and opportunities that highlight the value of his own effort.

I believe that studying abroad in an English speaking environment would be an excellent next step for him. Such an environment would challenge him academically, strengthen his language skills, and provide the level of expectation and stimulation that brings out his best work.

In conclusion, Richard is a highly capable and promising student with strong potential for continued academic and personal growth. He would be a constructive and engaged member of any university community.

Should you have any other questions regarding Richard please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,
Fraser Coyle
